From 1860-1865 the United States of America was locked in a bloody conflict between northern and southern states that would determine the future of the Union. Join UW-Madison for the second trip in our Civil War trilogy, covering the war’s Western Theater and the events that led to Grant’s rise to command of the entire Union Army.

This will be another extraordinary educational journey, beginning in Nashville, TN, and concluding in Vicksburg, MS, visiting the battlefields of Nashville, Franklin, Shiloh, Corinth, Brice’s Crossroads, Parker’s Crossroads, and Vicksburg! Joined by Civil War Historian Thomas Cartwright, these events will be brought to life as you walk the grounds and experience first-hand the ebbs and flows of the battles and sieges that were waged between the Union and the Confederacy.

Your tour will begin in Nashville, TN, where you visit the battlefields of Franklin and Nashville, while also enjoying a free day to experience the offerings of Music City USA! From there you will travel to Shiloh, the bloodiest battle in American history, later surpassed by the battle of Antietam.

From Shiloh your journey carries you into Mississippi, first to Corinth, a strategic point at the juncture of two vital railroad lines that Grant would use as his base of operations in his attempt to control the Mississippi Valley; and then to the sites of Forrest’s brilliant tactical victory at Brice’s Crossroads; and the fierce battle to protect Sherman’s supply lines at Tupelo.

Rounding out your educational experience is a tour of the brutal Siege and Battle of Vicksburg, where Grant effectively cut the Confederacy in half by finally taking this stronghold on the Mississippi River.

This is going to be another fascinating learning experience on some of the most storied ground in the United States. Expert guides, historical re-enactors, fine southern cookin’, and friendly companionship; this is American history at its finest and most engaging.

You don’t want to miss this one!
