Summer Music Clinic—Senior Session

Why Attend Summer Music Camp?

Summer music camp on the UW-Madison campus provides creative ways for you to improve your music-making. You will work with other talented young musicians in an exciting week of concentrated rehearsals and classes. Choose a schedule that matches your interests in band, orchestra, choir, voice, jazz, musical theater, or dance ensemble. Then pick classes that are specific to your interests in any combination of choices. Your family and friends are invited to attend the final concerts.

Highly Qualified Staff

Your clinic teachers are chosen from around the country for their talent and excellence as music educators. Music Clinic group lesson teachers are specialists, and every instrument and voice student acquires knowledge during this week on topics such as tone production and warm-up specific to the individual’s area.

Residence Hall Living and Supervision

Students live in the new Ogg Hall on the UW-Madison campus. The rooms are designed as doubles and are spacious, air-conditioned, and have small refrigerators. College-age counselors supervise the camp participants in the residence halls and plan daily recreation such as athletics, crafts, and social activities. There are evening concerts presented by guest artists, faculty, and students.

Residential students are paired by grade for their dorm assignment. Many campers meet their roommate for the first time at camp. New friends have a natural extension of the Music Clinic residence and learning experiences. Campers may request a specific roommate and need to include that person’s name on their application. Both roommates must request to be assigned to the same dorm and students.

Health Insurance

For your convenience, health staff members in the dorms and at University Health Services provide medical care if necessary. Campers are encouraged to have their own health insurance where possible, as UW-Madison can only provide limited accident insurance.

How to Apply for Senior Music Clinic

Complete both sides of the application form. First, circle class choices on the course grid. If you have asked to be paired in the dorm with another person, please confirm that your roommate has sent in this form with your name on it.

Register online at continuingstudies.wisc.edu/smc or mail your application form and check payable to UW-Madison Summer Music Clinic to: 209 Pyle Center, 702 Longfellow St., Madison, WI 53706

Deadline is May 2, 2016. An acceptance letter and detailed camp information will be mailed after we receive your application and initial payment. There is a $50 nonrefundable processing fee. The camp fee is $972. Residential camper fees include all costs for tuition, housing, meals, camp T-shirt, and recreational and evening concert activities.

Ten UW-Madison Tuition Remission Awards Available for College

Regents who are permanent legal residents of Wisconsin, completing their junior year at a Wisconsin high school and are attending the Summer Music Clinic 2016, may audition for these tuition awards. Students may audition in voice or on a brass, woodwind, percussion, or string instrument. (Note: piano and guitar are not included in this award.) Deadline for competition applications is June 1, 2016. Preliminary auditions take place June 26. Final auditions will be held June 29. You can find additional eligibility criteria online at continuingstudies.wisc.edu/smc. The camp directors will announce the winners at the conclusion of the camp.
